

Notification Cube

With the "Notification Cube", information about important events can be sent in the form of a popup, almost in real time, to target groups that can be configured as desired.

Description

The "Notification Cube" sends, almost in real time, notifications about important events in the form of a popup to freely configurable target groups such as roles and persons. After a freely definable time, the popup automatically disappears into the taskbar and can be called up at any time. Notifications marked as "important" remain in the foreground until user interaction.

Notification Cube

The notifications are delivered to the recipient as soon as the "Notification Cube" is active on the computer. This allows important information to be made available to the appropriate user, regardless of whether the Matrix42 interface is open.

Via the Matrix42 interface, each user can determine for himself or herself, in great detail, which messages are to be sent to him or her. Centrally specified configurations are also possible.

With this AddOn, we offer a flexible solution, as you can individually deploy in very many use cases, including via Workflow Studio.

Added values of the addon:

- Immediate notification of the most important events
- Fast, company-wide or area-restricted transmission of messages / announcements
- Marking of messages as "Important"
- Integrated link to the affected object for fast, direct access
- Individual configuration of notifications per person
- Flexible, individual configuration of notifications, e.g. via Workflow Studio
- Offline storage of unread / unconfirmed notifications
